BOARD MEETINGS: first Thursday every month

Oceanids new office, part of the International Faculty and Scholar Office, McGill Hall, Muir College
Coffee and refreshments: 9:30 am, meeting starts at 10:00 am.
(You are welcome to attend!)

Magical Mystery Tour

My magical mystery tour is almost at an end. I've served as your president for two years and am now turning over the organization to Kim Signoret-Paar. For me, without deep roots here, it has been a mysterious two years. As one not-anticipated issue after another arose, I've had to hunt for the correct contact to help solve our problems. And just when I have established good relations with the right person, poof – off they go to a different position or different university. Sigh. Happily, Kim is an inside player with years of experience in the UCSD administration. She knows who is who, what the offices really are, where to find those obscure bank accounts. I think it will be wonderful to have her as your president.

The magical part comes first of all from my admiration for the Oceanids officers and volunteers. Good things happen automatically – or so it seems: the newsletter is published, membership rolls are kept up to date, awards are given out, the Sounding Board entralls us each month, the Kitchen Exchange operates. The interest groups have lives of their own and run along to the enjoyment of many of us. I never had to worry about what happens behind the scenes – certainly a lot of work and thought – because things ran smoothly. You are very lucky in the talented and dedicated people who keep Oceanids on a steady path.

The other magic is the good Oceanids does in the university community. You frequently see mention in the newsletters of the students who have been awarded grants and awards. You have met some of them at our get-togethers. They are truly inspiring students and our awards mean a lot to them – just listen to them thank us. Our Newcomers events and our Kitchen Exchange touch a whole different swath of students who come as very talented people but nonetheless strangers here. We make life in the USA more comprehensible and show them friendship and relationships with real people through the programs we and the Friends support.

We have taken the resources from our donations and fund raisers and put them to good use. Sometimes, it seems they are multiplied – and it is the Oceanid members who are the multipliers through their volunteer activities to expand the good. You know the moral: give to the Oceanids and your donation will do a world of good across a broad spectrum. And special thanks to those who also are able to donate time to make our funds go even further.

I leave the presidency with great appreciation for all the Oceanids does for others. I will never forget the capable people I have worked with and will continue to enjoy the on-going programs and friendships. Keep it up and enjoy!

Liz Bonkowsky

The Emergency Fund

Several years ago we were given a very generous grant by one of our members. The Board decided to use it to establish an emergency fund – something we had thought would be useful but had never quite had the funding to realize.

The Emergency Fund is administered through the International Students and Program Office (ISPO). It is meant to assist foreign students when they are hit with an unexpected emergency. Most foreign students are far from home and on a very tight budget. They have difficulty coping when unexpected expenses or crises arise.

ISPO works with them to find sources of help and restructure their lives. ISPO has been very careful with the emergency fund but on occasion other options were exhausted and the students have been desperate. The fund has been used three times thus far. For obvious reasons, the details are not shared with us but the most recent case is very sad and we are truly grateful that the fund could assist.

A young woman came here as a student with her husband last year. She became a victim of domestic violence so severe that police were called and she had to be hospitalized. Facing a court case, her husband claimed they had not really been married in their home country. All her efforts seemed to be coming to naught – she lost her part-time jobs and feared she would have to abandon her studies. Her department, to its credit, stepped in and did everything it could to help her out and structure a program so she could finish her degree. ISPO did what it could. Still, she was destitute and as a last resort, ISPO appealed to us. We agreed to ISPO's plan to use the fund to help cover basic living expenses while she finished up her degree. ISPO wrote us, writing that they are “extremely grateful” for the generosity of the Oceanids and enclosing a letter from the student herself:

*Dear Sir/Ma'am at Oceanids,
I would like to thank you for the huge help that I have received from you! This past month has been the most stressful month for me as I was dealing with a lot of issues in my own life along with the extreme financial crisis. I sincerely appreciate the generosity and diligence of your organization and it is because of that that I will be able to continue my studies... in spite of all the hardships in my life. I seriously have no words to express my gratitude and thanks to the Oceanids Members for giving me the opportunity to make a life for myself and stand back on my feet. Please keep the good work up!*

IN MEMORIAM

Pat Stone passed away on March 22, 2017. Pat and I were friends for 28 years. She was a long-time member of Oceanids, going back to the 1970's. She was a good friend of my mother in law, Vera Vacquier, in Cafe Francais and other interest groups. Her mother was French, so she spoke fluent French, grew up in Los Angeles and attended UCLA.

We shared several passions: music, art and gardening. We played piano duets together and she was a member of the piano soiree for many years; We both loved orchids and I helped her repot her cymbidiums and counseled her on orchid care. She started oil painting in her later years, and we attended art classes together. She had many interests and a great sense of humor, and loved to tell stories of her dear family and interesting life. I will miss her.

Judy Vacquier

Our longtime Cafe Francais member Pat Stone passed away on March 22. Of course, she was also my neighbor. Pat treasured the Cafe Francais and was always a willing and gracious host. She loved a good party and thoroughly enjoyed every neighborhood get together. On a personal level, I'll miss her quick wit, her creativity and her love of life.

There will be a celebration of life event in her beautiful garden June 10th. Contact Judy Vacquier or Mary Hanson if you wish to attend.

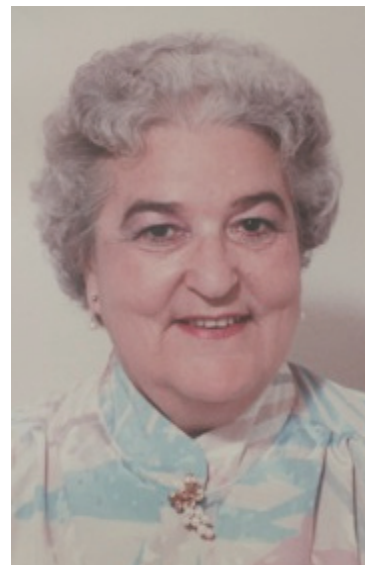

Our thoughts are with her family and friends.

It is with great sadness that we have to inform you that Maxine E. White passed away on February 7, 2016. Maxine had been instrumental in raising money for the International Center and particularly the Oceanids Pavilion. In her honor Oceanids established the Maxine E. White Service Award which was given yearly from 1988 until today.

I knew Maxine well in the sense that we worked together on numerous UCSD related projects. She was incredibly influential in helping Friends of the International Center and Oceanids (another UCSD support group) raise money, most significantly in 1984 for a much-needed addition to the International Center, to which she made a handsome donation herself, if I recall correctly.

Ruth Newmark

Maxine had been married to Fred White, who was associated with SIO and the medical center I believe. She spent many of her last years in Texas where she had a couple of women care takers.

She helped develop the plans for the Pavilion and spent countless hours volunteering, especially with People-to-People when we did some major fund raising for the Pavilion.

I was honored to receive the Maxine E. White service Award twice. The first time, I received it directly from Maxine.

Tales of New Zealand

by Liz Winant

It can be a concern, when you finally visit a place that you have always wanted to visit. Will it live up to your, possibly overrated, expectations? New Zealand was, for me, such a place, and it exceeded my expectations. When we decided to take a trip away from the stresses of inaugurating a new President, we decided to spend a month in New Zealand. We were also fortunate in having an old colleague of my husband's who now lives in Wellington. My first impressions on landing were that I was in a different version of England, my home country. At the airport, trash bins are called rubbish bins, and getting in a car, you drive on the left side of the road, again something I know well. However, the feeling of spaciousness and lack of crowding soon told me I wasn't in London. With only a total population of 4.64 million, it is very easy to find wide open spaces and empty beaches. Fish & Chips seems to be the unofficial national dish, but we were surprised to learn that most of the fish caught off New Zealand coasts is sold overseas, which drives the price up for New Zealanders. Fish was very expensive; however, beef and lamb were delicious and, since it was Summer, so were the stone fruits. After a few days in the lovely city of Wellington, we flew to the South Island, rented a car & drove around the more Southern part of the Island. The wildlife is amazing, with rare Blue & Yellow Eyed Penguins, and a well managed colony of Northern Royal Albatross, plus beautiful beaches. We spent a couple of nights in Dunedin, a town with a strong Scottish heritage, the first Scottish European settlers having arrived in 1848. It boasts that it has the "World's Steepest Residential Street" according to the Guinness Book of World Records. We bypassed Queenstown, a self titled "Global Adventure Capital", and went to chill out at Kinloch Lodge at the end of an incredibly scenic drive along the lake to the north west of Queenstown. However, the highlight of this trip was to visit, not the better known and very touristy Milford Sound, but Doubtful Sound.

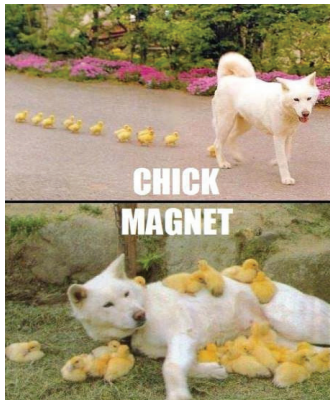

Doubtful Sound is a massive fiord, three times the length & ten times the area of Milford & much less visited. Legend says it got its name when Captain Cook, who was exploring in 1770, was very concerned that his ship would get blown into this large, deep sound & not get out. So he stayed out at the entrance, and acknowledged his caution by calling it Doubtful Sound. The trip on the Sound in a catamaran with an excellent naturalist was a great experience.

We also rented a nifty camper van to spend a week touring the beaches of North Island, including the famous Bay of Islands. The Kiwis love to camp, hike (called tramping in Kiwi) and be out in their beautiful country. Everywhere you go there are well documented hiking trails. We chose 'Conservation Campsites' run by the Department of Conservation (DOC) and they were amazing, with wonderfully beautiful sites, well equipped and clean facilities, and many in remote areas.

We have only begun to explore this beautiful country & hope to do much more.

What makes New Zealand so welcoming are the New Zealanders!

Something to think about:

The fact that there is a highway to hell and only a stairway to heaven says a lot about anticipated traffic numbers

So when is this "old enough to know better" supposed to kick in?

Be careful when you follow the masses: sometimes the m is silent

Calm down, take a deep breath and hold it for 20 minutes

I speak my mind because it hurts to bite my tongue all the time

A police officer called the station on his radio. "I have an interesting case here. An old lady shot her husband for stepping on the floor she just mopped." "Have you arrested the woman?" "Not yet. The floor is still wet."
